Skiing

Tremendous amounts of collapsing and whumphing today in the bacon rind. We parked at the southern lot and skinned up the ridge; got collapsing and whumphing on most aspects and all elevations. Kept it very low angle. Saw a large avalanche on Ernie Miller ridge; went full width of the east bowl and appeared to be moderately deep. Pulled from the S treed ridge across the entire face and into the trees on the other side of the main bowl. I have included a pic that doesnt really do it justice but hopefully shows scale.
